Early Morning Collision Turns Fatal in North Phoenix

(September 10, 2023) Phoenix Detectives are investigating a fatal collision involving two vehicles in north Phoenix early Saturday.

In the early morning of September 9, 2023, at about 2:00 a.m. officers responded to the area of Tatum Boulevard and Shea Boulevard regarding a collision between two cars. When officers arrived, both vehicles involved in the collision were on scene. They located an adult male occupant of a ride share vehicle suffering from critical injuries. The man was taken to the hospital where he did not survive his injuries. The driver of this vehicle sustained minor injuries.

The second vehicle involved, was driven by an adult woman with three passengers. One of the adult passengers sustained serious non-life-threatening injuries and the other two suffered minor injuries.

Detectives responded to take over the investigation. Preliminary information suggests that the car driven by the adult woman failed to stop for a red light and struck the victims vehicle. The woman was evaluated for impairment with no signs being reported.
